

How to pick a gym

ANCHOR LEDE

You've made the resolution: you're finally going to get fit.

For some, motivation or mobility aren't the problem. It's logistics. How can I find a workout location that fits my needs?

TAKE VO

Clare Spires, an exercise physiologist at OSF HealthCare, has a "gym-picking" checklist. Consider distance from home, equipment available, hours, crowd size, cleanliness and price. And remember those gym contracts can be tricky to cancel.

***SOT***

Clare Spires

OSF HealthCare exercise physiologist

"Talk about that up front with gym staff. Read the fine print. If you go to a smaller, locally-owned gym or a recreation center [as opposed to big chain gyms], those are going to be easier to pay month-to-month." (:14)

VO TAG

You can also get the scoop on a gym from family, friends or other gym goers. Read reviews too, but take anything you see online with a grain of salt.