Courtney McFarlin, PA, primary care provider at OSF HealthCare

“Ask yourself: would you feel comfortable with them driving your nine-year-old granddaughter around by themselves? Would you trust that? Do you feel they would be safe? When it becomes personal and they start to think about the safety of someone so dear, it puts it into perspective.” (:21)

Dr. Ari Lakritz [ARR-ee // LACK-ritz], PsyD, clinical psychologist at OSF HealthCare

“Tell them: those things you love are not going to be restricted. You will still be able to participate in those to the fullest. What we want is for you to be healthy, safe and be able for you to participate for many years to come. And all that takes is a shift in the way we’re doing things.” (:17)
