

Get cozy: How to exercise at home

Run time - :32

ANCHOR LEDE

Is the gym too far away? Or are you not a people person? Cozy cardio, one of the latest fitness routines to trend on social media, might be for you. And it's not just a winter thing. Tim Ditman of OSF HealthCare has more.

~~~

Clare Spires, an exercise physiologist at OSF, says cozy cardio is a way to make exercise comfortable in your home. Walking pads and a small weight set can jump start things.

And always keep safety in mind. Talk to a health care provider before starting a workout routine. Declutter the home. Have a buddy or phone handy.

***SOT***

Clare Spires [Clare like Claire ... Spires rhymes with tires]
OSF HealthCare exercise physiologist

"If you could use a little extra stability, maybe work out next to a counter that you can hold onto. Avoid something that's going to move on you quickly." (:08)

I'm Tim Ditman.

~~~

ANCHOR TAG

Experts recommend 150 minutes of moderate intensity exercise or 75 minutes of vigorous exercise per week, spread out over several days. Spires says when defining "moderate intensity," think about singing a song while working out. If the strain of the workout means you can't sing without running out of breath, you're at moderate intensity.

It's a process, but Spires says the benefits are worth it. Regular exercise means lower blood pressure, cholesterol, chance of diabetes and chance of heart disease. You might also see improved mood and sleep.